

Rhonda M. Sutton, Ed.D. is an alchemist. When she alchemizes, the unknown world of possibilities unfold and connect.

As the CEO, Lead Consultant and professional certified coach, she specializes in the unique needs of leaders as they navigate through the complexities and uncertainties of transformation. She is devoted to helping leaders reach their full leadership potential while maintaining mindfulness and well-being. With 35 years in education, she understands what it takes to lead and teach in a demanding system that creates opportunity gaps that can result in achievement gaps, especially for individuals of color. Rhonda works to create systems and environments that center self-care for the people who are essential to the work. She helps leaders step into their greatness and create environments where vision is clear, curiosity is awakened, and people are empowered to take action.

She strives to awaken the freedom of education and life as an irresistible revolution. It is in this awakening that she is able to support others in their journey to who they are becoming. What keeps her grounded are her values of honesty, trust, respect, curiosity, and freedom.
